

In the Garden #1

Master Gardeners; for many of us our gardens are a continuous work in progress.

As for my own....

My own yard is currently a mess just about everywhere. There is so much I want to do. I have many projects in mine but by focusing on one at a time is the only way I will complete a task. Sometimes I'm over whelmed with ideas of past & present. Occasionally I will ask someone else for their thoughts & implement their ideas into the picture. When I do a project suggested by one of my MG friends, I try to do it immediately or risk forgetting the new idea.

However I have found that when I look at someone else's yard, I often do envision beds, flowers, shrubs, & trees where there are none & imagine what it would look like all planted up & out.

My point to all this is, don't hesitate to ask any one of your Master Gardeners for suggestions. Who knows they may see something in your garden space that you haven't even thought of. There are no good or bad ideas. It's your choice to use or discard the suggestion. Who knows, it could open a new door to the imagination.
